Handy Chart: Patient Care Options at FHN
Time for Thanksgivng …

The holiday season is upon us and while Thanksgiving gives us a specific day to remember all for which we are grateful, we at FHN are thankful every day for the privilege of providing healthcare excellence for our friends and families.

As I keep that in mind, I welcome you to this issue of INSIGHT! There are stories about people who have thanked us for their care, from treatment at the Leonard C. Ferguson Cancer Center at FHN Memorial Hospital to one of our own people who can literally now breathe easier. You’ll read about individuals who are glad they returned to FHN after having worked in other organizations, and schools who’ve thanked us for the financial prizes they received for their participation in our Miles And Minutes activity program. We’re happy that these individuals have experienced the commitment to excellence that we strive to bring to every interaction with our staff, our patients, and the community!

To return to what I’m grateful for, there’s info about the planned enhancements to our surgical suite and the debut of our new Crisis Stabilization Center, both being supported by generous donors to the FHN Foundation. Attending our Festival of Trees Gala is another way you can support the Crisis Stabilization Center – I’m really looking forward to it. Our whole Festival of Trees calendar is included, offering something for everyone throughout the holiday season, with many opportunities to spend time with family and friends during this busy time.

I’m also excited about our new virtual visits! While not intended as a replacement for in-person visits, FHNow will come in handy for times you just can’t make it to an in-person appointment – your care can be provided over the phone, on a tablet, or from your desktop. It’s available to anyone, whether or not they’re current FHN patients, and sign-up is super-easy.

Our next issue of INSIGHT will kick off the year 2020, so this is my opportunity to wish you and your family a wonderful holiday season. We are always grateful for the privilege of serving as your healthcare provider — thank you for choosing FHN!
Most people know what it is like to have a sinus infection. No fun. But for those who suffer from chronic sinusitis, it can become a draining and debilitating ailment.

Stuck in a State of Perpetual Lethargy

“I was miserable,” says Amanda Heimann, a Lena wife and mom and FHN Central Business Office team leader, when talking about her chronic sinus infections. “I was prescribed three different antibiotics over seven months, but I still never felt great. I had constant pressure across my cheeks, suffered from headaches, was hoarse and nasally, and felt stuck in a state of perpetual lethargy. My kids kept asking why I didn’t want to participate in activities like I used to. It was stressful.”

Amanda had heard about new sinus procedures at FHN, and asked her family practice physician Rebecca Pedersen MD, CPE, FAAFP, and ear/nose/throat specialist Shawn Shianna MD, about them. After examinations, they suggested that Amanda could be a good candidate for a simple sinus procedure called balloon sinuplasty, and ordered a CT scan. Then she consulted with Terry Donat MD, FACS, FICS, who confirmed her sinus passages were inflamed and blocked … and that he could help. She had found her solution and was more than ready to proceed. “Dr. Donat explained exactly what he would do throughout the procedures, how long the entire procedure would take, and what to expect for recovery. I left my appointment knowing I was in good hands and had all my questions answered.”

Balloon Sinuplasty is Safe and Successful

Studies have proven that minimally invasive balloon sinus dilation, also called balloon sinuplasty, can provide long-term relief by opening blocked passageways for 94 percent of patients. It is a safe, fast, and effective procedure, often performed under local anesthesia in the doctor’s office. Amanda ended up having balloon sinuplasty on her frontal sinuses, where the CT scan showed it would be most effective, and sinus surgery on her sphenoid, ethmoid, and maxillary sinuses. After just a couple days off work (due to the sinus surgery – recovery from balloon sinuplasty is typically less), she felt like a new person. Today, she is symptom-free. Though she knows she may still get a sinus infection, she is gratified that she can expect it to be briefer and less severe than her previous experiences. No more “constant pressure.”

“I can’t believe how much better I can breathe,” exclaims Amanda. “I was struggling to keep up with my kids and finding it difficult to breathe when running, something I had been doing for fun and fitness. Now I’m back to running around with my kids and I recently competed in my first 10K race! I am so happy I had these sinus procedures at FHN, performed by people I work with and trust.”

Carol Richards has been fighting cancer for eighteen years, and she takes it all in stride. She is simply not one to sit and dwell.

She will be on preventive chemotherapy for the rest of her life. She knows it. She accepts it. And she deals with it, every 3 – 4 weeks at the Leonard C. Ferguson Cancer Center at FHN Memorial Hospital in Freeport.

Her journey started in 2001 with a breast cancer diagnosis. She had a mastectomy and reconstructive surgery in Milwaukee. In 2009, a persistent cough took her to FHN otolaryngologist Shawn Shianna, MD, an ear/nose/throat specialist who was concerned her cancer may have spread. Unfortunately, he was right.

Dealing with Bad News

According to Carol, “Dr. Shianna immediately referred me for a scan, and my cancer had metastasized to my brain and lungs. At that time, I had radiation and chemotherapy at FHN’s Ferguson Cancer Center in Freeport. I have been getting chemo here ever since – for over 10 years. I live in Chana, about a 50-minute drive, but it is well worth it. If it weren’t for

Choosing the Cancer Center

Julie Nampel, director of the Leonard C. Ferguson Cancer Center at FHN Memorial Hospital, shares that some patients who come to FHN had their original diagnosis or surgery out of town. “We care for patients who were originally diagnosed and/or treated at medical facilities elsewhere, yet choose FHN for their chemotherapy or radiation. We work with their physicians to ensure the best continuum of care, and the patients benefit from the innovative treatment we provide, often closer to home.”

Luckily, Carol tolerates her chemotherapy treatment quite well. “I am on a drug that was new at the time I started taking it,” she explains. “It doesn’t make me very nauseated or tired, so that helps me get back to work quickly and lead an active life. I enjoy time on the boat, four-wheeler, snowmobile, or motorcycle. I love being outside for a ride!”
Finding the Right Regimen for Each Patient

Dr. Shaikh agrees that Carol’s chemotherapy has been effective. “It is gratifying to find a regimen that consistently works and is well-tolerated, especially for a long-term patient who requires regular treatment,” he explains. “This is a major priority in oncology, and we work hard to find and tailor the right combination of medication for each patient. In Carol’s case, that unique match helps her maintain her enthusiasm and energy so she stays active and engaged — which also enhances her prognosis.”

In fact, studies show there are tangible benefits of exercise during cancer treatment. According to the Harvard Health Blog, in one analysis of 61 clinical trials of women with all stages of breast cancer, those who exercise during treatment had significantly improved quality of life, fitness, energy, and strength, as well as significantly less anxiety and depression. It matters.

As for Carol, she is content on the back of a bike or seeking another adventure on the river with her supportive boyfriend, Rocky, who has been with her through everything for more than 20 years. “Rocky has played a huge part in keeping me active and loving life. I am happy that I feel good and I am going to enjoy each day. I have had cancer for a long time, and the treatment is part of my routine — a regular item on my to-do list. With great care and a positive outlook, I will just keep on enjoying the ride.”

State-of-the-art Radiation Oncology at FHN

FHN’s alliance with Paramount Oncology Group (POG), an innovative cancer care organization based in Dubuque, Iowa, allows us to provide state-of-the-art care for patients like Carol, including stereotactic radiosurgery that precisely targets radiation in fewer high-dose treatments than traditional therapy, which can help preserve healthy surrounding tissue, greatly improving patient outcomes.
Residents of northwest Illinois and southern Wisconsin don't have to travel far to receive high-quality surgical care. Providers at FHN deliver a wide range of surgical services close to home, including general surgery, vascular surgery, ophthalmology, obstetrics, orthopaedics, ear, nose and throat, and podiatry. With FHN's experienced surgeons and compassionate support staff, you will have the personalized care you need every step of the way.

While many improvements and enhancements have been undertaken to ensure patient safety and provide the ability to offer ever-more-advanced surgical procedures, it is time for another overarching upgrade at FHN. The last significant upgrade of this magnitude for the Surgery Department at FHN Memorial Hospital was undertaken almost 20 years ago.

Upgrade to be Completed in 2020

The $1.5 million project includes updates to the flooring and modern high-tech surfaced walls and ceilings, as well as state-of-the-art lighting and video equipment that will keep us at the forefront of these technologies for many years to come. The proposed upgrade project will be completed in phases as we continue to provide uninterrupted, safe, and compassionate surgical services for FHN patients.

Our new video laparoscopic equipment (pictured at left) will be LED, all-digital, and high-definition. It will help distinguish critical anatomy with nine dedicated surgical camera specialty settings—including infrared technology—to provide an enhanced visual assessment of blood flow using fluorescent light. This advanced military-grade technology helps surgeons see clearly through suboptimal conditions sometimes encountered during laparoscopic procedures.

While the Surgery Department at FHN has maintained an enviable record of patient safety, the walls, floors, ceilings and other surfaces in the surgical suites have endured many years of complex and rigorous maintenance in order to provide maximum infection control barriers. New, more durable surfaces will not only ensure patient safety but also enable staff to be more efficient in their processes, thus minimizing patient wait times.

"With these upgrades to the surgical suite environment, FHN staff can assure patients they will receive care in our best-possible, safe, and sterile environment that upholds the highest standards and best practices," says Director of Surgical Services Mary Al-Khazraji, MSN, RN, CNOR.

FHNnow
Telehealth 24/7

A Doctor ‘On Call’ 24/7, 365 Days a Year

Sometimes, it just isn’t convenient – or even possible – to get in to see your healthcare provider: Your teen comes home from school with what looks suspiciously like pinkeye; you’ve got a sore throat, but a busy schedule; or you’re traveling and feel an ear infection coming on.

We’re pleased to offer you an “always there” option – a virtual visit through FHNnow!

FHN’s new telemedicine app FHNnow gives you access to a board-certified physician via smartphone, tablet, or desktop computer, and your virtual visit is just $59.

FHNnow is designed to be a convenient way to consult a healthcare provider when offices are closed or when patients aren’t able to schedule an appointment in person. It is not a replacement for in-person visits with your primary healthcare provider.

FHNnow is available to anyone – you don’t need to be an FHN patient to use the app. FHN patients can have the notes from their e-visits forwarded to their FHN primary care provider.

An FHNnow virtual visit is appropriate for non-emergency illnesses and injuries such as:
- Sinus and ear infections
- Colds
- Flu
- Sore throats
- Upper respiratory infections
- Ear problems
- Pinkeye

FHNnow visits also are appropriate for:
- Dermatologic conditions
- Rashes
- Eczema
- Warts
- Cold sores

Appointments are available immediately or can be scheduled in advance, and FHNnow physicians can send prescriptions to area pharmacies.

Lab work, x-rays and other services requiring in-person care are not available through FHNnow, and children under 36 months with a fever must be referred for in-person care. Support for multiple languages is available through FHNnow.

Virtual visits are $59, payable by credit or debit card. No insurance can be processed through the FHNnow service; check with your insurance provider to see if the fee is reimbursable.

The fee may qualify for reimbursement from HSA or FSA funds; check with your HSA/FSA provider for details.

Get to Know the Supply Chain Team at FHN

The Supply Chain Team is comprised of Sourcing, Receiving & Storeroom, Central Supply, the Print Shop, and Courier Service. Thanks to the continued development of internal partnerships, the Sourcing team works closely with our finance department to expand our e-commerce opportunities.

The energetic Receiving and Storeroom team harnesses the tools of e-commerce to maintain high efficiency, with electronic receiving now a key component of our processes.

The Central Supply team at FHN implemented a 2-bin system (an adaptation of a manufacturing Kanban system), allowing us to restock additional areas in the hospital without any supplementary staff.

The Print Shop expertly manages all day-to-day print operations, system-wide mailings, and a massive fleet of multi-function devices in all FHN offices.

The Courier team melds a traditional messenger service with newer logistics methods to deftly manage the daily logistical complexities of FHN’s many locations.

Simply put, the Supply Chain Team orders and distributes all of the medical supplies to all of the offices and departments at FHN. While the team also includes the copy and print center and courier service, its core responsibility is to keep the hospital, family healthcare centers, and specialty care locations continually supplied with medical materials.

“We hold approximately a quarter-million dollars of supplies in our storeroom at any given time and distribute them wherever they’re needed without the wait,” says Supply Chain Director Bill Coppernoll.

OB is Online

When you’re having a baby, you have lots of questions. Why is your body changing? What are your nutritional needs? What medical tests are important to schedule? Pregnant patients just got a new online resource to make it easier to access helpful answers to these questions – and more – from FHN’s Obstetrics staff. The OB section of FHN.org includes a detailed pregnancy guide, summaries by trimester, helpful videos, class registration links, and much more, putting valuable information at your fingertips, whenever you have time to review it.

FHN’s entire Obstetrics team is dedicated to helping you have a healthy pregnancy, a fulfilling birth experience, and a prepared entry into motherhood. Most of all, we aim to give your baby a healthy start in life! Check out our new OB web content at fhn.org/ob.
BOOMERANGERS’ RETURN TO FHN: They’re Glad They’ve Come Back—and So Are We!

A boomerang employee is someone who has left an organization and has returned to that same employer later. There are many reasons why people leave organizations, but what’s significant is the reasons that they return. We spoke with boomerang employees at FHN to find out what encouraged them to come back and continue their careers with us.

Samantha Toay

After six years in Admitting and Registration and Administration, Samantha left FHN to work in agri-business because of her family background in farming. While she enjoyed the work, she missed the daily interaction with other employees, patients, and community members while she was at FHN. She came back this past July to serve as Volunteer Services Coordinator and HR Specialist and is doing great things with our many volunteers.

“I very much enjoy the people and the family-feel here at FHN. I feel like I have a specific purpose here,” says Samantha. “Even though I’m not involved in the clinical side of things, I’m here to try to impact people in a positive way and I feel like I’ve been given the opportunity to do that here.”

Michelle Kelly, MSN, RN, CMSRN

After working at FHN for three years as a professional registered nurse, Michelle Kelly left to work for another organization for a short time. In 2018, she returned to take a nursing leadership position as Operations Leader in our Medical-Surgical/Pediatrics Departments. She’s glad she came back.

“I really enjoy working in the family-friendly atmosphere here at FHN. You’re not just another warm body here — people know your name. I feel like I make a positive difference in my role in the department. I’m so proud of the commitment to safe patient care, and the priority it is given at FHN.”

Shawn Shianna, MD

Dr. Shawn Shianna practiced at FHN for more than 20 years, serving several years in leadership positions on the medical staff, before leaving in 2015 to be close to family in the Atlanta area. He returned this past February and finds the environment at FHN to be much more to his liking.

“The smaller size at FHN allows you to feel comfortable picking up the phone and talking directly to the director of nursing or a radiologist, or whomever you need to speak to in order to provide better care to individual patients,” Dr. Shianna says. “I’ve often thought about the fact that a lot of our providers and other professionals are pretty smart cookies. Many of them could practice at high-profile institutions in Chicago or Milwaukee. They choose to be here because they want to be here, because of the high-quality care that FHN provides.”

Career Opportunities at FHN

“We have been extremely fortunate to have had a number of outstanding professionals come back to the FHN family after leaving for various reasons,” says FHN Talent Acquisition Specialist Carol Boeke. “They bring with them knowledge and experience gained from other institutions and in different roles. We couldn’t be happier that they’ve chosen to join us again.”

Whether you’re a former FHN employee looking to boomerang back to us, or you’re interested in finding out more about careers at FHN, visit fhn.org/careers or contact Carol Boeke at cboeke@fhn.org or 815-599-6706.
